
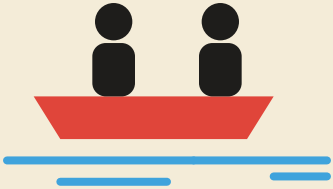
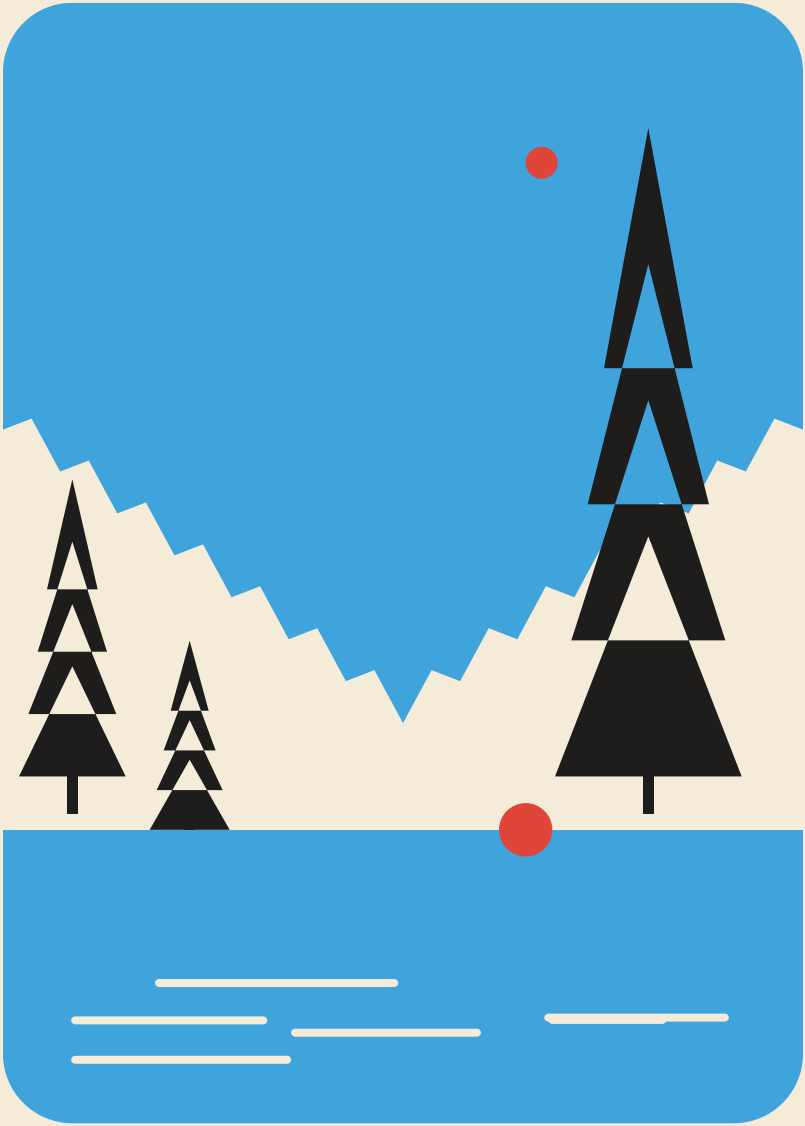
THE LAKE BEFORE MORNING

a Paper Book sample story

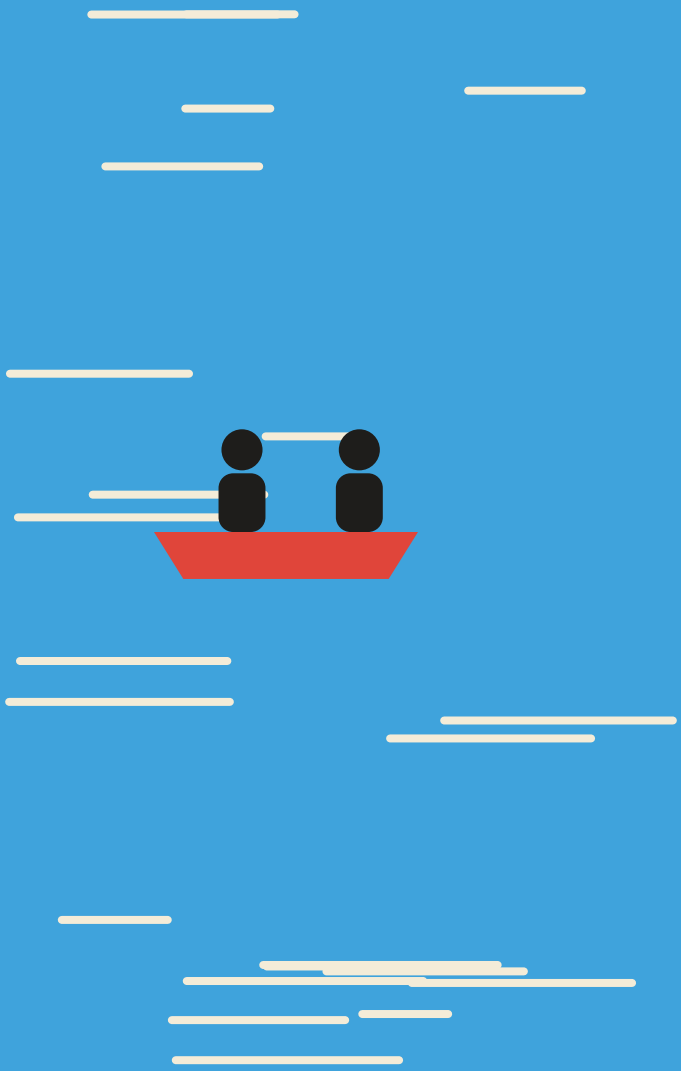
Before anyone woke,
Ada and her grandfather
carried the red boat
down to the water.



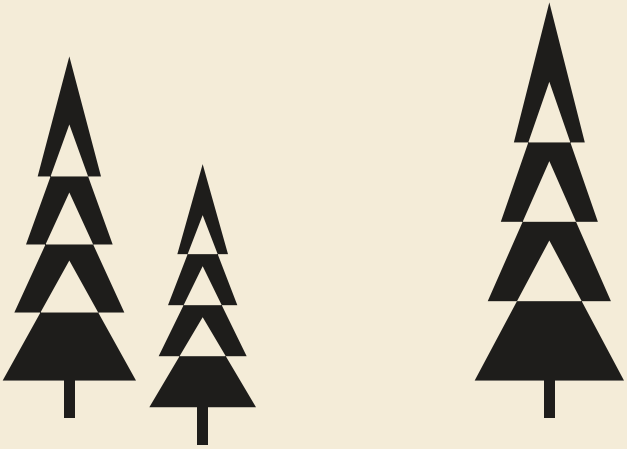
They rowed out before the lake woke up,
and nobody said a word.

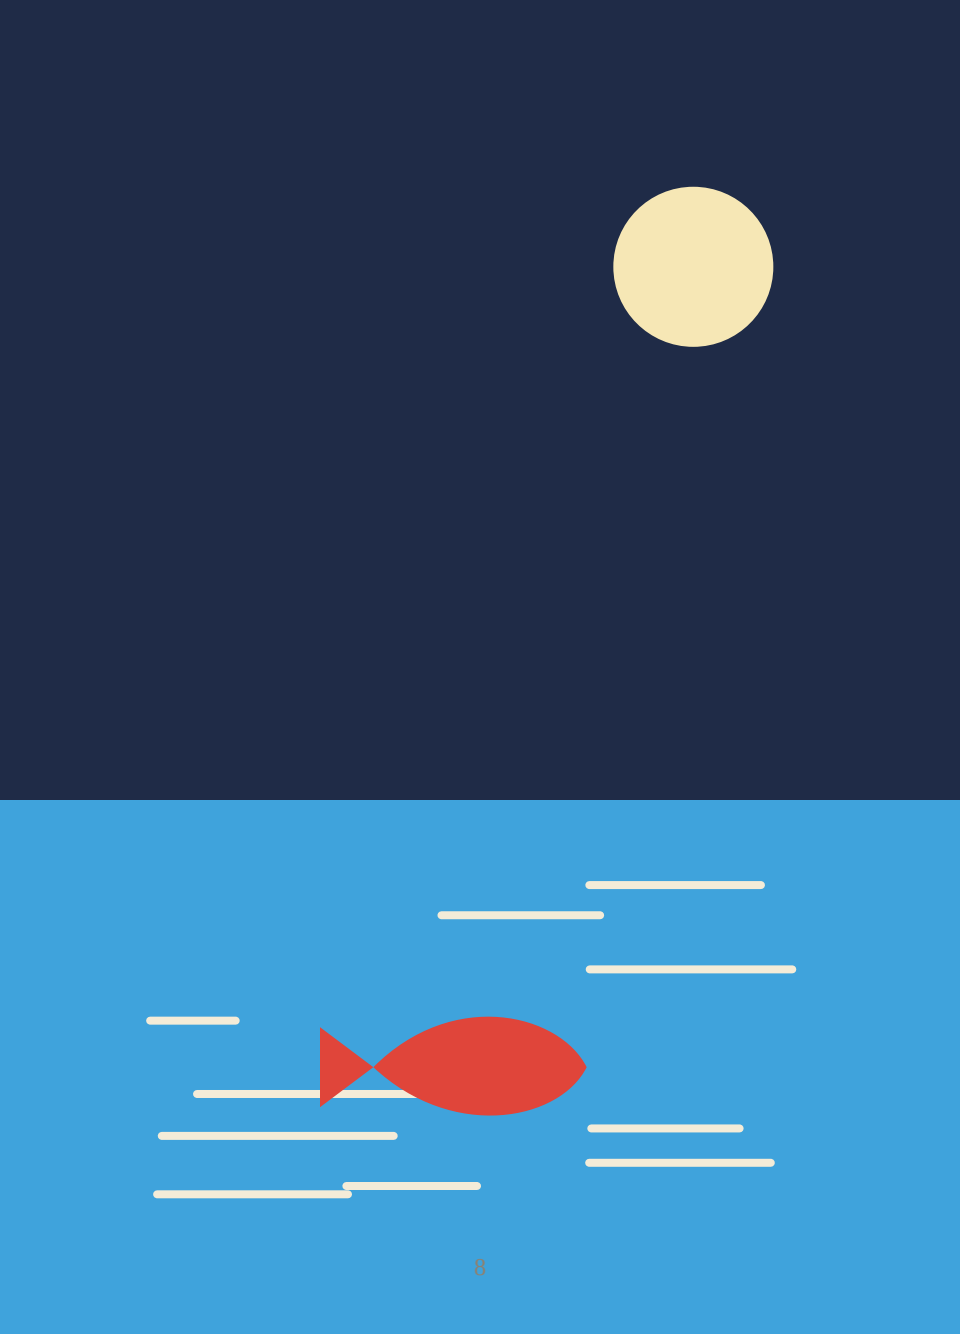


The sun came up
the size of a button,
and the lake turned
from grey to blue.

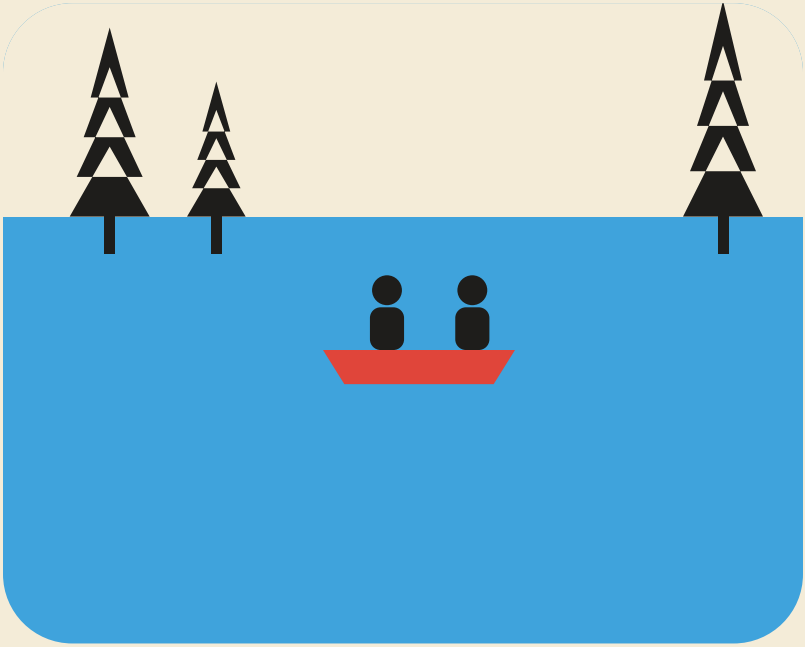


"Listen," said Grandfather.
Somewhere a loon was calling,
and the trees leaned in
to hear it.





Ada caught nothing at all,
and it was the best
morning of the summer.



They rowed home slowly,
the boat full of light.

THE END

Open your own PDF to read it as a book